

Allie Tole, Harry Ballsagna

PDL Reporter "Allie, may I call you Allie?" "Lets talk about Harry Ballsagna, quite possibly the greatest name Portland Dodgeball has ever seen, where did it come from?"

My friends and competition all call me Allie, so you can too. Well, Harry Ballsagna surfaced while brainstorming with my roommate/teammate, Justin "Hell Dog" Doyon. We were throwing some names around (no pun intended) while eating a little lasagna one night and Harry Ballsagna was born. Since then we've all just been busy serving up some Harry Ballsagna for everyone's enjoyment.

PDL Reporter "Knoblauch has been getting a lot of attention from opponents the last few weeks, what makes him such a great player?"

I'm going to go ahead and assume you're talking about my favorite firecracker on the court, Mr. Matthew "Yaws" Yaworsky Jr. I'd love to be able to tell you and all those kids out there that he's such a great player because he works hard, eats well, and believes anything is possible...but in this case, I really feel like it's all about that natural, raw, God-given talent. And boy, what a smile!

PDL Reporter "Your team is playing Abusement Park in the first round of the playoffs this season, what kind of strategies are you working on with your team in the days leading up to the big night?"

Strategies? It's no secret that, here on Harry B, we lack a certain level of strategy. But I feel confident saying that strategy will come to us in time. If you want to discuss words starting with the letter S, let's leave strategy out of it. We're all about spontaneity, sass, and superhuman focus.

PDL "Lets be honest for one moment here, you are a veteran in this league and yet every night you come to play with an uncanny desire to win, what keeps you going? What makes you tick?"

Asking what makes me tick is like asking a shark what makes it attack...it's that killer instinct. When I step onto that court, the adrenaline starts pumping. I guess you could say that I was born for this.

PDL " Thanks Allie for your time, best of luck in the playoffs."

Thanks so much. I appreciate the support.
